

RASH

The word is possibly derived from Old French for eruption and/or Latin for scratching. It refers to redness that has suddenly appeared, but the word denotes little more.

It is better to refer to an eruption, but never to a skin rash – where else would the redness be?

Lawrence Charles Parish, MD, MD (Hon)
Philadelphia, PA, USA